‘Mouban: The Liquid Gold of the Sundarbans

A Gift Born from the Wild

This jar of Mouban honey is a pure taste of the Sundarbans, the world's largest mangrove forest. It is sustainably harvested by local villagers from the fringe areas of the Sundarbans Tiger Reserve. Marketed by the West Bengal Forest Development Corporation (WBFDC), this premium honey holds both an FSSAI certification and a prestigious Geographical Indication (GI) tag, guaranteeing its authentic origin and exceptional quality.

The Richness of the Sundarbans

The Sundarbans is a mystical UNESCO World Heritage site where land meets the sea. This unique ecosystem produces honey unlike any other in the world:

Mangrove Flora: Sourced primarily from the nectar of Khalsi, Bani, and Goran mangrove trees.

Distinct Flavor: Possesses a natural, light amber color and a perfect balance of sweet and woody notes.

Nutritional Edge: Naturally rich in antioxidants, minerals, and enzymes due to the unique saline environment.

A Legacy of Courage: History of Honey Collection

For centuries, the traditional honey collectors—known as the Moulees—have ventured into the dense mangrove channels.

Ancestral Knowledge: The art of tracking wild Apis dorsata (giant rock bee) hives is passed down through generations.

A Sacred Ritual: Before entering the forest, Moulees pray to Bon Bibi (the forest deity) for protection against royal Bengal tigers and crocodiles.

Socio-Economic Lifeline: Today, this ancient practice safely transitions into an organized livelihood. Harvesting happens only during a strict window from April to June to ensure ecological balance.

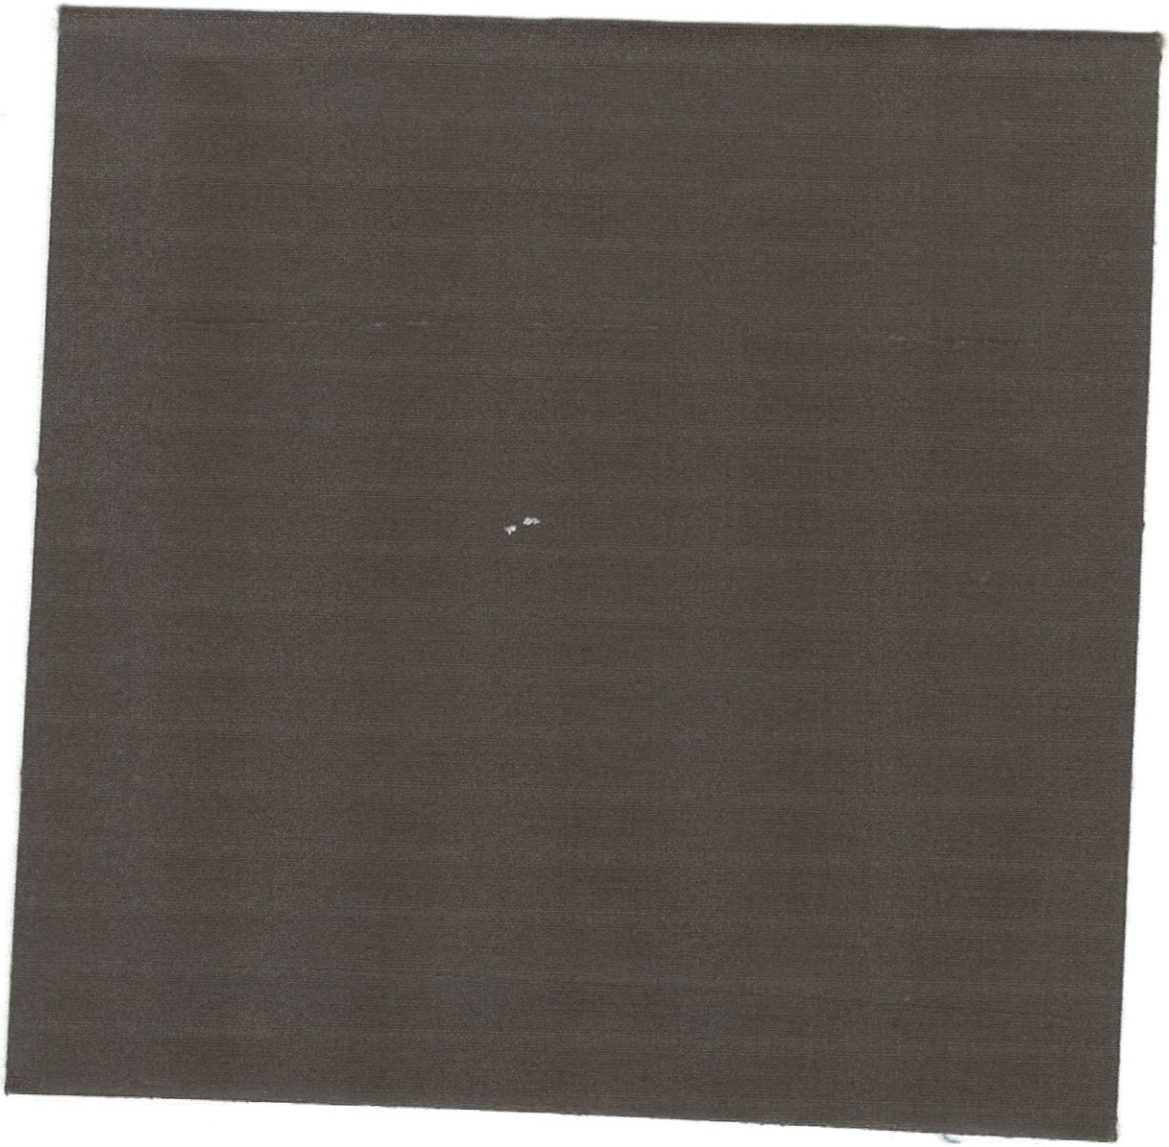

Conservation & Livelihood

By enjoying Mouban, you directly support forest-fringe communities. Your gift promotes sustainable forest management and reduces man-animal conflict by providing a respectful, organized income for the traditional Moulees.
